ESSD, in company with all Copernicus journals, promotes and honours open discussion processes. However, for this particular manuscript and dataset - submitted in careful compliance with ESSD's 'Living Data' practice - at this particular time we adopt a closed non-public process during review. We take this unusual step to prevent too-early release, misuse or mis-attribution. We cooperate with partner organisations and journals to achieve simultaneous high-impact announcement. At the time of release, anticipated for early December, all materials - original manuscript, reviews, author responses, revised manuscript, etc. - will become fully open and accessible. I note that the prior version - Global Carbon Budget 2017 (<https://doi.org/10.5194/essd-10-405-2018>) - published in ESSD in March 2018 underwent rigorous comprehensive review and associated public discussion, with all reviews, comments and revisions openly available then and now to interested readers.
