This dataset and R script can contribute to our understanding of the generation of a classification of tillage practices, and to map of crop-specific tillage systems for around the year 2005. The paper is acceptable for publication because the authors addressed all review comments. Thus, I recommend that it should be published without any modification.