

Response

The authors made significant efforts to improve the overall quality of the paper and the dataset by replacing a simple linear regression model with a robust LSTM model-based reconstruction, as suggested. They have also sufficiently evaluated the reconstructed data. Additionally, they improved the explanations for the data and methods, as suggested. I thank the authors for incorporating my comments and improving the manuscript. Therefore, I recommend the publication of the paper in its current form.